Ex-Kaiser's Three Quart Ivory Beer Stein to Be Sold

Relic From Berlin to Be Offered With Other Treasures.

Any one having the least possible use for a stein may go to the Anderson Galleries presently and bid for the ex-Kaiser's favorite beer mug. If there was that much good beer anywhere several quarts of it would fit in this gem of the collection of the former Emperor of the Germans, which is to be placed on show at the Anderson Galleries in the Renaissance style, carved from a Siberian tusk, fabulously old and intricately decorated with a relief of the "Birth of Venus."

According to Mr. Povelson, who brought the collection here, this ivory stein was sometimes used by his recent majesty on state occasions, although its size and weight make it a formidable object when used as a drinking vessel. It is now and will be sold empty at the auction. It will be sold entirely upon its merits as a work of art, without side attractions.

FIELD GIRL BOTH 'MADE GOOD'

He Proved Himself a Man, and She Good Mother, Asserts Lawyer.

COURT HEARS CONTRACT

Interpretation of Word 'Issue' Argued in Action Over Millionaire's Will.

SPECIAL TO THE SUN AND NEW YORK HERALD.

CHICAGO, May 13.—"After Henry Field and Peggy Marsh had ended their act of pretty decency on both sides," said lawyer Gov. Edward P. Dunne, counsel for Henry Anthony Marsh, the son of the "millionaire" of the Field estate, before Judge Charles Foell when the case of the will of Marshall Field was continued to-day.

"When faced with matrimony Peggy Marsh was neither a coward nor an infantele. She bestowed upon her son all the love of a mother. Henry Field proved himself to be a man. He lavished money on his son and his mother, left nothing undone that would add to their comfort, and before marrying signed a contract to support them."

According to the contract, Henry Field was to pay Peggy Marsh during their joint lives $10,000 a year for the support of herself and the child. As the boy became 5 and 10 years old the sum was to be increased to $25,000. The contract also provided that if Henry Field died before the boy became 10 years old, the sum was to be $50,000.
